Figure 1. Each bin shows the projection of the neural response obtained for a specific stimulus frequency in one channel onto the first component obtained by PCA. Best correlation for different stimulus-frequencies varies systematically with electrode position. The channels are aligned linearly along the tonotopic arrangement of the IC, with channel 1 and 32 recording in the layer most responsive for high and respectively low frequencies.